

Peace

Editor The Chronicle—Sir: In a communication from Ole J. Sneide in the Safety Valve of to-day concerning your suggestion that Hitler will propose peace when and if he reaches certain objectives, Mr. Sneide makes the following assertions:

"Let me disillusion you. Hitler will not propose peace to his enemies any more. However, the United States will propose peace to the Nazis when the big double-cross takes proper effect."

This Mr. Sneide may know his Hitler, though I am a bit skeptical about his knowing Uncle Sam.

Assertions and statements in the paragraph above quoted strongly suggest that we are being double-crossed by one of our allies and that the United States is headed for defeat.

I do not believe he is in possession of any real facts or logical information that would justify either of his statements or suggestions. If he is in possession of any such information and facts he should do the country a favor by making them known. If not, he should keep out of print.

Friant.
