

'Flying Saucer' Theorist Is Dead Mr. Sneide Leaves Cash for a Statue

Ole J. Sneide, retired San Francisco accountant who offered a nationally publicized explanation of the "flying saucers," died here August 31 leaving more than $10,000 for a statue of Aphrodite and publication of a stack of manuscript under the title of "Heimrhibeat."

His death at 61 became known yesterday when his will was filed for probate.

It provides:

1—That his ashes be scattered from the Golden Gate Bridge. (While no State law prohibits the scattering of ashes, health departments are ordered not to release ashes except to a cemetery or other funeral depository. This makes all requests to have ashes scattered impossible in California.)

2—That his manuscripts on occult affairs in the vaults of the Bank of America be published at a cost of $3000.

3—That the title be "Heimrhibeat" (German, meaning "homework") and $500 be provided for library copies and that the book be published in a magazine of national circulation. (The Saturday Evening Post or Literary Digest.)

4—That the remainder of the estate pay for a statue of Aphrodite, Greek goddess of love and beauty, for the City of San Francisco.

On this last point, Mr. Sneide was specific: He wanted the statue chosen by the Art Commission. And if no commission exists, he wants a three-man commission appointed

OLE J. SNEIDE
He had a theory on discs

by the Mayor. The will was written in 1937.

The statue, the will directs, is to be placed in Golden Gate Park or "in some site in conformity with the history attaching to said statue."

Sneide, living among his metaphysical library at 1232 Market street, was publicized nationally when he explained the summer's unexplained and spectacular rash of "flying discs."

"The discs," said Mr. Sneide, "are scout ships from Nimbre A. Thectos." He explained these are high class people who live on the dark side of the moon and take an intellectual interest in the earth's problems.

"I projected myself into space to find the answer," he said. His sources were the Dhyanis, rulers of creation. "They appeared in a blinding flash of light—the answer was 'Information refused!'"

A Good Shaking

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 9. (UP)—Detectives hastened to answer a telegraph burglar alarm at the Community Savings Bank today only to discover it had been set off by Patrolman Robert Hurd, zealously shaking the front door while making his rounds.

Re-auditioned

Competent teachers, small classes, military drill and pageantry, well-coached