

VERY HARD TO MAKE MINDS MEET

Editor The Chronicle—Sir: I really should not answer Joan Prentiss, but for her enlightenment, permit me to suggest that she read my article very closely and understand every phrase in it; then there would be no necessity for her first paragraph. Rushing into print in undue haste is bad taste. It seems that many arguments in the Safety Valve arise from one correspondent misconstruing the other. If J. Prentiss knew my views, as they really are—I pity the bird whirled in a tornado. Know you know nothing.
